Accommodations at Waimea.

Mr. Editor: Waimea has welcomed herself in smiles to welcome "the most sensible, most intelligent jurors that (counsel informs us) have ever assembled to give me a verdict in this Court."

No rain, light breezes, and enough plover to reward learned counsel for their pleasant trips with dog and gun.

A general hilarity of demeanor, and a leisurely discharge of more or less unpleasant duty are decidedly the orders of the day—or days—or even weeks. The jurors, however, have this much to be thankful for—that through the kindness and forethought of Mr. E. G. Hitchcock, the miseries of a Waimea sojourn are things of the past. A double panel has been well housed and fed in a place where, formerly, half that number of men were subjected to the horrors of Ko Kee's hospitality by day, and to the uncertain chances of anything better than the bare floor by night. Mr. Hitchcock will have the satisfaction of knowing that he has earned the gratitude of twenty-four "good men and true," and that when, after we return to our happy homes in December, we look back upon Waimea, our latest reminiscences of that charming spot will be rather pleasant than otherwise.

THE JOYFUL JOURN.
Waimea, Hawaii, Nov. 21.

Mr. Editor:—I see by the return of your sham or straw election, that the prohibition vote was seven. That was more than I expected in Honolulu; the mammoth rum hole of the nation. I knew of only two there, excepting ladies. Of course I knew that there were a great many temperance people there of the liberal "solid order" of temperance. Selfish order? Yes, they believe in keeping away from the devil, them and theirs, and let all others do the same if they can; but the doctrine of the prohibitionists is not only to keep away from the devil themselves, but to keep the devil out of home and out of everybody else's home, by binding him with a strong chain of law—statutes and constitutional amendments—thus working to protect others as well as themselves. So let me say to my brother and sister prohibitionists through the Gazette, that inasmuch as ours is a party formed for the redemption of man from the drink curse and never expects to give up any part of the temperance ship, as long as a factory can be found that manufactures drink drinks, or a saloon found to sell them, not in fact until this moral reform encircles the earth. And as organization is life, we must organize for the conflict as soon as convenient and agitate for "God and home and native land." United we can make our power felt and our principles known among men, although we are only eight in number.

The devil we are fighting is entrenched behind the law and all moral suasion is powerless to cast him as long as high and low license laws and other legal permits are granted him as a protection against the assaults of temperance. License means continuance and Government protection. This fact is amply demonstrated by the late decision of Judge Dole. The supposed right of the minister to curb this rum devil at will amounts to nothing as long as he is permitted to occupy this law fact. It is our business to cast him; this conflict must go on until he is. The temperance element is numerous enough now in this Kingdom to cast him if they were only united.

Moral suasion is good but powerless. Legal suasion is both good and powerful. So organize and agitate, hoist the white flag, aim high. You are now occupying the top round of the temperance ladder and can clearly view the situation which other temperance people who occupy the lower part of the ladder cannot do. They are not high enough to look into the enemy's quarters, though equally honest with ourselves in their beliefs. But if not converted to prohibition they will continue to help make license and other laws ostensibly to "restrict the evil," but in fact only serving the devil as a foot from which he throws the red-hot shot of hell into all Christian communities, slaying men and women body and soul by scores of thousands yearly; and the most wonderful part of this truth is that these same Christian communities are the ones that build and maintain the legal forts from which this shot is hurled that makes such havoc among them. They will no doubt continue to give good service to keep the enemy entrenched secure from prohibition shot, until they get converted; then no doubt they will also step up upon the highest round of the temperance ladder and become worthy and welcome allies in the prohibition army.

So we must agitate and thus school and convert the people to prohibition, until those legal rum forts would be removed. Judge Dole says they are there and must be respected and protected, because the King and Legislature of this Christian community put them there, and there they must remain until a prohibition Legislature is chosen, when they will be removed.
